Judges 3:15-23, 30

OCT 25

A Lack of Instruction

Judges 17:1-6; 18:18-19, 27

This quarter introduces lessons that describe Israel's transition from nomadic tribes to their settled inheritance in the land of promise. In Unit 2, three lessons on Judges highlight Israel's propensity to ignore God and His ways. A new generation arises, one not acquainted with God or with the history of their redemption. They fall into apostasy, forgetting Joshua's warnings. Judges records a cycle of infidelity that plagues the Israelites for generations. Recognition of their sinful ways happens sporadically, but God continues to intervene to rescue them. God remains faithful, raising Judges like Ehud – a left-handed warrior who liberates Israel from their enemies. But the next generation demands a king.
